STATEMENT OF CONCERN

Currently I am the director at a community college library. Community college libraries need a new voice on the council as we face growing enrollments with limited budgets and the call for more expensive digital online resources and formats to support online coursework. However I pledge to represent all types of libraries. I have worked in both public and academic libraries. I have worked in technical services, reference services and administration. My varied background gives me the ability to look at issues from all viewpoints. With decreasing budgets and increasing cost, centralization can only make sense for individual libraries. Another issue of concern is the marketing of library services. Patrons are increasingly reliant on the Internet and are not aware of the proprietary database services in libraries. Libraries and librarians need to learn successful marketing techniques to promote their libraries.
