1. What is the name of your Institution?

2. Write your city, state, zip code, and country:

3. Are you getting a custom domain mapping for your LibAnalytics? Write YES or NO:

If Yes, enter your custom domain here: <http://>

The custom domain mapping will increase the system's search engine ranking. It is also a great branding tool, since the users will access the system on your .edu (or .org) domain.

IMPORTANT: If you are getting the custom domain mapping, your IT folks in charge of your domain need to create a CNAME alias for your custom domain and point it to libanalytics.com).

ALSO IMPORTANT: If getting the custom domain, please make sure it is live before returning this form to us. You will know it is live if you type its URL in your browser and get the Community site. Do not pick library.yourinstitution.edu (or .org) as your custom domain. Your custom domain cannot contain any "/" characters. It has to be in the following format: something.yourdomain.edu (or .org/.net/.com, depending on your institution's domain).

Domain examples (assuming your institution's domain is midstate.edu): valid choices: libanalytics.midstate.edu, analytics.midstate.edu. Invalid choices: library.midstate.edu/libanalytics, library.midstate.edu/analytics, www.midstate.edu/data, etc.

4. How many Instances are you getting (1, 5, 10, or 20)?:

The pricing is as follows:

1 Instance; up to 5 Instances

up to 10 Instances ; up to 20 Instances

5. The name and email of your LibAnalytics admin:

This is the person who will have the first admin account in the system and be able to create accounts for others, as well as customize the look and feel. This admin can create other admin accounts, if needed.

IMPORTANT: Please make sure your admin and your staff involved with LibAnalytics adjust their email spam filters to ensure they receive emails from springshare.com domain. Otherwise, they will miss important emails from us, including the "Welcome / Getting Started" info.

That's about it. Send back this document and we'll build your system asap! Thanks for your time...
